

Morning message:

Good Morning. I was so proud to see all the work you had done on your animal research projects. The covers of your books were amazing. Today we will dance with Mrs. Jaffer during our Zoom call. Today you might try the new Boggle Game for Daily 3.

*Directed Drawing:

I know it's sad 😞 that we are having to stay inside so much...and lately I've been thinking about my favourite

	stores. Have you? (Amazon just isn't the same!) Here's a chance to draw the store you have been missing! Get out your paper and sharpie—after you're done drawing, you might want to name, decorate and colour your store.
11:00	MUSIC  Check out Mrs. Ishii's Blog
11:30	Math &amp; ADST Can you build a balance scale? One of the ways we compare the mass of items is with a balance scale. It works like a teeter totter does at the playground—heavy goes , light goes ! Today I challenge you to build your own balance scale and then use it to compare the weight of the following objects. You can also use any other objects you have in your house...  Here is a sample balance scale: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Hanger</li> <li>• String</li> <li>• 2 plastic cups</li> </ul>

Now that you have been at home with your families for a while, you might have taken on extra jobs to help. What new job/activity have you started to help at home? Take a photo of you doing this job/activity and send it to me.
