

THE DIALOGUE: SHAWN'S FAVORITE ITEMS

*He = Shawn

Object	What Happens On A Regular Day?	What Are The Highlights?
Piano 	Well, for most of the day, I just sit around in the dark but if he doesn't have so much homework, then he comes down and practices his pieces. He is normally quite interested in his songs that he plays.	Sometimes, he plays a great masterpiece and I love the melody of the song. I especially like songs from Chopin and Debussy. He also might come in in a good mood which tells me he's going to play extra well. He also occasionally helps/leads his brother in his songs.
Backpack 	On a regularly day, if it's a school day, I get lugged around, filled up with stuff and then brought by car to school. Sometimes I ride in the front, but sometimes I am put in the trunk. Once I get to school he drops me off and leaves me with all the other backpacks. Sometimes, I feel like I'm the one at school learning since I get so much info from other backpacks.	Sometimes, I get really crazy news from some of the other backpacks and their owners; things they witnessed at home or their concerns about how they might be replaced sometimes in the future. So, I do what he would if he were there, either show some enthusiasm towards a funny story or calm them down and tell them to not worry about the future so much as the present.
Spear (Martial Arts) 	I only get visited by him once a week, but he does commit his time every Sunday to come and practice, I just am so excited to practice the different forms with him. He also gets along with his friends well, though sometimes they have minor arguments about things. However, these are usually solved by a compromise made by him.	When we're practicing, he communicates with his coach well and is very understanding. Some classes we might get to learn a new section of a form and he devotes a lot of focus and attention to learning the new part. Finally, after the lesson is over, he will gently put me back in the proper place unlike some of the younger kids there. He also sometimes helps his coach by leading the others in their forms.

MACC MINI-BRAIN

Laptop 	Not to brag, but unlike the others, I frequently get used almost every night. From what I notice, he works very hard towards his goals, having no or little distractions during his work. He also likes to turn on music and listen to it while he works on something that doesn't need much thought, such as drawing or coloring.	Sometimes, he's really focused on one specific item of homework that he needs to type up or research. I like the intense look on his face when he's "in the zone" during work time. He also has the look of ambition when he just thought of something amazing to type down. He is also very independent when doing his work.
Comp-book 	He frequently likes to open me up to write about lots of weird things he sees and hears over the days. It's crazy; some of the things that he writes; I mean "I feel like a dangerous woman"? Where does he even get these things?	Sometimes he writes down a very important date and writes extra info on it. The only ones so far have been the election and the trip to Science World. I get to learn more about him and I can't wait for another day like these ones!