Imagine..

Imagine a place called Karmaland where, whenever you do something, the same kind of thing happens to you afterwards. So, if you deliberately push someone over, ten minutes later someone will deliberately push you over; but if you help someone then a short time afterwards you will also be helped. Would you like to live in a place like this? Is Karmaland a fair place to live? Would you rather live in Karmaland or in the real world? What do you think would happen if you accidentally hurt someone else? What if you helped someone without meaning to? What do we mean when we say: 'it's not fair'?
